

House chooses speaker, majority leader today

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats picking new leaders today were certain to elect Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill as House speaker, but they had to settle a tight race for House majority leader among four candidates battling to succeed O'Neill.

The legislative leaders being chosen today will be working with a president of their own party for the first time in eight years.

O'Neill, of Massachusetts, had no opposition to succeed retiring Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma, who has held the post since 1971.

The apparent front-runner for majority leader, the No. 2 spot, was Rep. Phillip Burton of California, the hard-driving, ambitious chairman of the Democratic Caucus.

But Burton was pressed hard by Reps. Richard Bolling of Missouri, a parliamentary expert who has written extensively on the problems of the House, and Jim Wright of Texas, who has long worked on the fringes of the leadership and who appeals to the party center.

The fourth candidate, Rep. John J. McFall of California, now holds the third-ranking position of whip. But he was expected to be the first eliminated. His campaign, slow to get off the ground, was dealt a blow by the recent disclosure that he received $4,000 from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park.

McFall said Park asked for no favors and that the money was put in his office account and used for official purposes only.

At a Sunday session with newly elected Democrats, O'Neill sought to quash reports that he would be unhappy with Burton as a teammate — as to settle any doubts as to who would be in charge.

"I can work with any member you elect," O'Neill told the freshmen. "No member is going to push Tip O'Neill around if he's in the second spot. Once you give me the leadership role, I'll be the leader — and make no mistake about it."

The give-and-take with the new members disclosed concern with two issues. One is Congress' poor public image, further dimmed by sex and payroll scandals earlier this year and the disclosures of gifts and favors to several members by Korean interests.

There was also questioning about how a Democratic-controlled Congress that increasingly asserted its independence during eight years of Republican rule in the White House would relate to the Democratic administration of Jimmy Carter, who has plans of his own.

THE CANDIDATES

Tax cuts a 'certainty' Lance declares, but Carter not convinced

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, disagreeing with his newly-appointed budget director, said today a tax cut is not a virtual certainty next year. Carter said it is too early to tell what steps might be needed to stimulate the economy.

Carter said he is not convinced yet that cutting taxes is the thing to do. "I'm deliberately keeping my mind open," he declared. "I have advisers who are leaning all different directions, but I'll wait and see."

The president-elect said he will consult closely with Congress before deciding what to do about the economy.

Thomas "Bert" Lance, Carter's choice to be director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Sunday that a tax cut early in the new administration is "virtually certain."

But at an informal news conference today, Carter declared: "It's too early to decide. I wouldn't say it was virtually certain, although it is one of the possibilities." Carter did say that a permanent or temporary tax reduction is possible "if the economy needs stimulation, and I think at this point it appears that way."

Another option, Carter said, are programs to put people to work. He said it will be difficult to meet his goal of reducing unemployment by 1.5 per cent during his first year in office, but he promised to make effort to do so.

The nation's unemployment rate now stands at 8.1 per cent, or about 7.8 million persons.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the Commerce Department said increased business spending is at least another six months away.

The department said a survey of business plans taken in October and November showed the volume of new equipment and facilities purchased by business in the first six months of next year will be virtually flat.

Economists have been anticipating a sharp increase in business spending since early this year. In previous economic recoveries, such spending had materialized by now.

Lance told a Los Angeles newspaper that a tax cut of up to $15 billion — possibly in the form of a rebate on 1976 income taxes — probably will be proposed by Carter. He suggested that a tax cut will be part of a package to stimulate the economy that will include a jobs program and tax investment credits to spur industrial expansion.

Asked earlier on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation" about the possibility of a tax cut, Lance said that other possible economic stimulants "are so limited that I think you have to consider that almost a certainty."

Carter has said he would consider a tax cut if the economic signs indicated a need for one.

FIVE DIE IN CRASH

All men from Orange County Five killed in plane crash

IRVINE (AP) — A Newport Beach land developer and four other men have been killed when their twin-engine airplane crashed as it tried an emergency landing near this Orange County city.

The five men, returning from a fishing trip to Mexico, were killed Sunday afternoon when their private plane lost power as it approached Orange County Airport and crashed a mile and a half short of the runway.

The victims were identified as Edward Pisoni, 45, of Newport Beach, the pilot; James Shortridge, 37, of Newport Beach, a contractor; Jerry Bell, 33, of Tustin; Lloyd Jennings, 21, of Tustin; and Roger Barnett, 36, of Santa Ana. Pisoni was president of Realty Development Corporation of Newport Beach.

Scattered about the crash site were souvenirs from the trip to Mexico — colorful woven blankets and intricate ornamental sailing ships.

A witness said the pilot appeared to be trying to set the plane down on a street in front of a construction site for an industrial complex.

The pilot of the twin-engine Aero Star radioed a mayday to the tower at Orange County Airport at 4:13 p.m., telling controllers he had lost power in one engine and was still three miles from the runway.

Two minutes later, the plane disappeared from radar screens. The burning wreckage was spotted by another pilot shortly afterward.

Chuck Watson, a construction worker, was standing only 100 feet away when the plane skidded over a sidewalk and ploughed into a mound of dirt only a few feet from a row of partially constructed buildings.

Watson said the pilot appeared to be trying to pull the plane's nose up but that it rolled over and dived to over a mile from the airport when it veered to the side and one wing struck the ground. The victims were from Newport Beach, Tustin and Santa Ana.

The nation's unemployment rate now stands at 8.1 per cent, or about 7.8 million persons.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the

Five hurt when train rams auto

Five persons were injured Saturday night when their car was hit by a Union Pacific Railroad train at the Park Avenue crossing at First Street in Pomona.

But of those reporting injuries, only one, 7-year-old Bernavis Stallings, of Los Angeles, required hospitalization. He was treated for possible internal injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred later to County-USC Medical Center.

The others complaining of pain were released after examination at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police said that reports of how the accident occurred differed. The driver of the car, Mary J. Stallings, 25, of Los Angeles, told officers that the crossing gate was lowered after she drove southbound onto the tracks and her car was struck. But witnesses said that the driver drove around the crossing gate after it was lowered and the car was hit as it crossed the southern pair of tracks.

UP Engineer Jack Daly, 60, of Los Angeles, said he was unable to see what position the gate was in as his westbound freight approached the intersection, but he added that it appeared that the driver made a sweeping movement from the wrong side of the street onto the tracks. A railroad work crew examined the crossing gate mechanism later and reported to police that it was in order.

Others reporting injuries at the hospital were Mrs. Stallings, Kelese Stallings, 4, Stacy James, 13, Lamont Cobb, 10, both of Pomona.

Japanese results should please U.S.

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Liberal Democratic party, shaken by Lockheed and other money scandals, took a sharp rebuke from Japanese voters Sunday but apparently managed to hang on to the government. The opposition Communists also lost ground badly.

The Liberal Democrats failed to gain a majority in the lower house of parliament for the first time in its 21-year history. But their opposition remained divided, with voters turning to several small middle-of-the-road parties instead of the larger Socialist and Communist groups.

The Communists, who registered sharp gains in the last election, dropped 22 seats this time, the only opposition party to lose ground.

The results should please the United States, which has watched former friends and client states in Asia swing either sharply left or sharply right. It also could mean closer Japanese relations with China, strongly favored by the opposition. But it may have spelled the end of Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki's short reign.

With 511 lower house seats at stake, the Liberal-Democratic party (LDP) won only 249, seven short of a majority. But LDP headquarters announced today that eight persons elected as independents had joined the party, giving the Liberal-Democrats 257 seats to 254 for the opposition and remaining independents. Some independents join the LDP after every election because nonaffiliated members of parliament have little power.

However, the total was still in sharp contrast to the 51-seat majority the party won in the 1972 election, and was far short of the 271 seats needed to assure the Liberal Democrats of the chairmanships and control of all parliamentary committees.

The extent of the conservative humiliation was also shown in the popular vote — of the 56.5 million votes cast, the LDP won 23.6 million or 41.7 per cent, 5 per cent less than it got in 1972.

"I feel the Liberal-Democratic party gave the impression to the people we lacked self-reflection over the Lockheed incident," Miki told a news conference.

Asahi, Japan's biggest newspaper, called it a "landslide defeat" and predicted "major post-election turmoil."

Miki was re-elected to the lower house, but the setback to his party will probably result in his replacement as prime minister by his former deputy and longtime rival, Takeo Fukuda.

The Socialists won 123 seats, Komeito (Clean Government) 55, the Democratic Socialists 29, the new Liberal Club 17, independents 21 and the Communists 17.

The Socialists and Communists expected to capitalize on the Lockheed scandal.

Employee boost set for state hospitals

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has approved "in principle" a plan to add 700 employees to state mental hospital staffs by next June 30 in an effort to improve care provided by the troubled system.

Brown's action Saturday will result in staffing levels in the 11-hospital system about equal to those required by a bill he vetoed last September.

Brown said he decided to expand staff levels after recent pilot programs involving larger staffs resulted in "significant improvements in the functioning" of patients.

He also said that recent changes made in Department of Health and mental hospital administrations convinced him that the facilities would be well run and the additional personnel properly utilized.

State mental hospitals have been rocked in recent weeks by reports of brutal patient treatment, poor administration and questionable circumstances surrounding some patient deaths.

Raymond Procnier, Brown's Health Department troubleshooter, said Friday that the state was looking into 139 "very questionable" patient deaths at 10 mental hospitals over the last three years.

He told reporters he thought some of those deaths would be referred to district attorneys for possible criminal prosecution.

The staff additions will bring the number of mental hospital employees to 11,610 by June 30, Brown said. That would be an increase of 1,000 positions over the total last June 30.

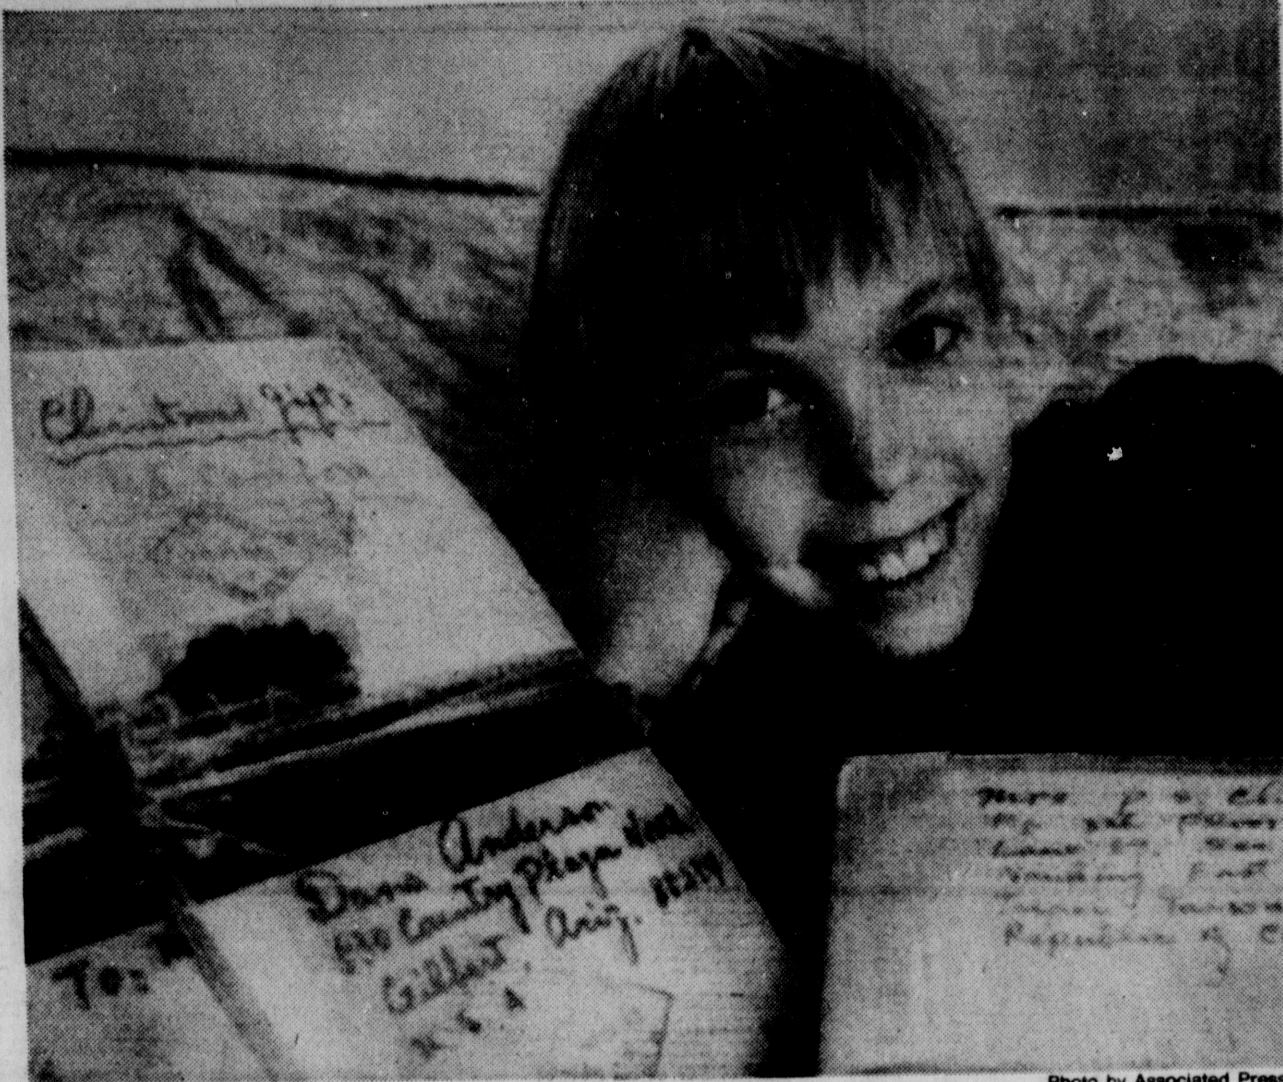

Most of the new workers will be psychiatric technicians and nurses. But there will also be more psychologists, social workers, teachers and rehabilitation therapists hired.

Further personnel additions will be made over the next five years to meet staffing standards first proposed in 1973, Brown said. The additions made by June 30 will bring the number of personnel to 83 per cent of recommended levels.

Current staff levels are at about 73 per cent of the 1973 standards.

The California State Employees Association, which has criticized Brown for taking a "pen-nypinching" approach to mental hospital budgeting, estimated last week that 2,400 new positions would be required to meet the 1973 standards.

The hospitals, which house more than 15,000 patients, are now operating at 1968 staffing standards.

Investigation reveals

Pregnant Arcadia woman strangled

ARCADIA (AP) — Strangulation has been determined the cause of death of a 26-year-old pregnant woman who apparently had surprised a burglar in her home.

Authorities said Sunday that Renee

Kane, whose body was found wrapped in a blanket under a bush near the Pasadena Rose Bowl Saturday, had been choked to death with an electrical cord. The cord was still tied around her neck when a hiker came upon the body, police said.

Mrs. Kane was six months pregnant. The fetus did not survive.

In custody was Emery Sowell, 24, a Pasadena handyman who has been booked for investigation of murder and kidnapping. Police searched a remote area in the Angeles National Forest after Riddle told them Friday he had left the woman's body there.

That search was called off Saturday just hours before the body was found 10 miles away.

On Sunday, Riddle claimed he didn't remember anything about the incident, an Arcadia investigator said.

"He's claiming he has absolutely no knowledge of what he did with her, that he's not even sure he saw her at the (Kane) house," the investigator said.

Police had said that Mrs. Kane, the wife of Los Angeles attorney Robert Kane, had been kidnapped from her Arcadia home Thursday, apparently after catching a burglar in the act.

A television, stereo and jewelry identified as belonging to the Kanes were found in Riddle's car after a chase that ended with his car careening into an embankment, police said.

X-rays indicated that Riddle was not injured in the crash although he had been hospitalized in the jail ward at County-USC Medical Center, authorities said.

Blacks charged

OCEANSIDE (AP) — Three black Marines charged in a raid on a barracks party in which six whites were injured faced a pretrial hearing today at Camp Pendleton.

The raid occurred Nov. 13 at a beer party thrown by seven white Marines. A group of blacks invaded the barracks with pipes and screwdrivers, sparking speculation that their aim had been to disrupt a Ku Klux Klan meeting.

However, the Klan meeting was being held in an adjoining barracks.

Since the raid, officials at Camp Pendleton have tried to ferret out Klan members, and 16 whites known to have belonged to the white supremacist organization have been transferred to other bases.

Those facing preliminary hearings today are Lance Cpl. Bobby R. Bishop, 23, of Bryan, Tex.; Pfc. Donald R. Hunter, 22, of Winston-Salem, N.C.; Sgt. William Spencer, 23, of Highpoint, N.C. Each will be represented by a Marine Corps attorney.

Cardboard cows

SACRAMENTO (AP) — There wasn't anything wrong with your eyes if you thought the cows grazing along Interstate 80 between Reno and San Francisco this past weekend looked a little strange.

They were. What you were looking at was cardboard cows set up by student volunteers for a one-day art project called Celebration of Wonder.

Altogether 4,000 brightly painted cutouts of man's favorite milk producers were propped up along Interstate 80 and Interstate 880, a detour around Sacramento.

There were silly looking cows, cows with maps on them, cows with big eyes, spotted cows.

"They give people driving along the freeways a new environment to gaze upon," said William Kleb, a project coordinator and drama professor at the University of California's Davis campus.

Governor Brown's

Legislative liaison team 'bipartisan'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s new legislative liaison team has something for both major political parties.

When state legislators began their 1977 legislative session today they found a Democrat and a self-described "reactionary Republican" waiting to convey the governor's views to them.

The two aides are Anthony Dougherty, Brown's new legislative secretary, and Dougherty's assistant, B.T. Collins. They'll be backed up by Diana Dooley, the deputy assistant.

Dougherty is replacing his former boss, Marc Poche, who resigned a few months ago to teach law.

Poche, Brown's dormitory supervisor when the governor was a student at the University of Santa Clara, was so skilled at guiding Brown's programs through the legislature that he gained a reputation as the "irreplaceable Poche."

That doesn't bother Dougherty, 35, who has also worked for former San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto and helped with the campaigns of Robert Kennedy, Hubert Humphrey, Edmund Muskie and George McGovern.

"I think Marc Poche is a very nice person and I take what they say to be a compliment to him," Dougherty says. "But the idea that I am brand new to all this is just not true."

"I was Poche's deputy. I've been with Brown since the campaign days for governor. I am able to talk back to him — I already have. And I'm not unfamiliar, either, with statewide politics."

Dougherty says he plans to "use the same tactics" with Brown and the legislature as Poche did, urging Brown to keep in close touch with lawmakers and letting legislators know "I see this job as basically neutral — as a conduit."

"When I'm pushing legislation it will obviously be for the governor but I also will try to present their (legislators) views to the governor in a fair and honest way. I'm not sitting here with a heavy ideology of my own."

Frenchman green over visit to Elohims

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Frenchman Claudio Vorilhon wrote in a book that it happened — about the little green men and the ladies in the bathtub and all — and 150 persons paid $3 a head to hear him say it.

In great detail, Vorilhon told his hotel audience over the weekend that his adventure started October 7 when he found himself the guest of small men with green skin and a flying saucer.

So, Vorilhon said through a translator, there he was on the planet of Elohims. And there were these robots, as Vorilhon said in his book, "Beings from Outer Space Took me to their Planet."

The Frenchman went on to relate how the Elohimsian robots carried him to a machine where a nice looking girl appeared in a lighted cube. One of the robots asked him if the lady was okay.

Vorilhon said he thought the lady was fine, and the cube commenced cranking out five more of the same, making six in all, whom he took to his pad and they all leaped into a bathtub. Charming, said Vorilhon.

Eddie De Trinidad, the hotel's banquet manager, said he wished he could have given Vorilhon a cut rate on the $300 rental for the hall but he couldn't. De Trinidad said he believed in UFOs.

Burglar suspect killed by police

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — One man was killed and another wounded when police said officers interrupted a burglary at a private home Sunday. Policemen Joe Williams escaped injury when he pulled one of the burglary suspects in front of him as a shield when the other burglary suspect opened fire.

The man Williams grabbed was shot three times and killed. He was not identified.

Williams fired twice, wounding Michael Darden, 23, of San Francisco, who was reported in stable condition following surgery.

Police were called to the address when a neighbor reported seeing two men kick in the back door of the house.

Police said Darden faces charges of murder, burglary and assault with a deadly weapon on a officer.

Collins, a 36-year-old ex-Special Forces captain in Vietnam and a Republican, says he and Dougherty are "miles apart" philosophically. But that will permit each issue to get a full airing before a policy decision is made, he adds.

Collins says he sees his job as "listening to the legislators, listening to the taxpayers and listening to lobbyists, as well."

One of his goals, he adds, is to "slow down the spread of government," and when legislators call on him with spending proposals he plans to show them several cardboard boxes at the side of his desk.

Inside are about 4,000 letters from homeowners demanding, even begging, for property tax relief.

Officer shot

COMPTON (AP) — A Compton police officer has been hospitalized in fair condition after an assailant talked with him from a car, then shot the officer in the knee.

Officer Thomas Chenard, 28, was making a routine check of a police parking facility Sunday when a motorist approached him, asked about a friend, who was in police custody and shot him in the knee, according to police Lt. W.E. Hartmann.

"He was just shot for no apparent reason," said Hartmann.

Chenard was listed in fair condition at Dominguez Valley Hospital.

Hartmann said the assailant sped away after the shooting. No suspects had been arrested.

Tax bill set

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A San Francisco state senator said he would introduce a constitutional amendment today designed to lower taxes on single-family, owner-occupied homes.

Sen. John Foran, D-San Francisco, said his proposal would "set a fair balance between taxes on homes and all other property by recognizing that a person owns a home as a necessary means of shelter and therefore should be taxed at a lower ratio than commercial property."

The amendment would set up a two-tier system of property taxation, requiring county assessors to tax single-family, owner-occupied homes at a lower rate than other property.

Currently all property must be assessed at the same ratio.

The Foran amendment would have to be approved by both the legislature and voters before taking effect.

Grenades found

LANCASTER (AP) — County arson experts were to be dispatched this morning to examine boxes labeled "napalm" and "hand grenades" found in the desert 25 miles northwest of here.

Sheriff's deputies sealed off the area Sunday afternoon after two hikers discovered a box of .30 caliber machine gun ammunition near the California Aqueduct. The two labeled boxes were found nearby but left unopened until experts could reach the spot. It was not known to whom the ammunition belonged.

Investigators said it appeared the boxes had been buried but exposed by wind and rain. The area is sparsely populated.

Plane crash

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Authorities say a 35-year-old El Monte pilot has been hospitalized in serious condition after making an emergency landing on a highway.

Sheriff's deputies said Wesley Vaughn was forced to land the Cessna 150 in the Baldwin Hills area Sunday morning when a mechanical problem disabled the aircraft. He was taken to Daniel Freeman Memorial Hospital in serious condition with head injuries.

Twenty amphetamines were found in his possession, but a sheriff's spokesman said Sunday night he did not know whether drug possession charges would be filed against Vaughn.

Deputies said the aircraft was a total loss.

Home saved

DINUBA (AP) — An automatic telephone alarm system saved a $200,000 home near this Central California community, firemen said.

A pan of grease on the stove caught fire Sunday while the resident, Michael George, was away briefly at his mother's home nearby, the Division of Forestry reported.

But the flames triggered a telephone recording system which dialed the fire department and reported an emergency — probably fire — at that address, firemen added.

High court delays murder execution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today postponed the execution of a Texas murderer who did not want his scheduled Friday death in the electric chair delayed.

The high court delayed indefinitely the execution of Robert Excell White, a 30-year-old drifter from Waco, Tex., who says he deserves to die.

It was the second time in four days that the Supreme Court had delayed the execution of a prisoner who wanted to die. On Friday, the justices postponed the firing squad execution of Utah murderer Gary Mark Gilmore, who had convinced state officials to let him die.

The court voted 8 to 1 to tell Texas officials to postpone White's execution pending an appeal by his attorney, Justice William H. Rehnquist voted to deny the execution postponement.

White's attorney, J.E. Abernathy, had asked the court for time to challenge the state's death penalty, the indictment that charged White with murder and the method of jury selection used at White's trial.

White does not want to appeal, however. In a Nov. 23 letter to the Supreme Court, White said, "Mr. Abernathy is acting against my express instructions and desires. I explicitly told him that I did not wish any federal appeal of any sort whatsoever."

"I am mentally prepared to accept the judgment of sentence imposed upon me," said White, a death row prisoner at Huntsville, Tex., for the past two years. "Any delay now will only inflict needless mental hardship on me."

Gilmore was to have died at sunrise today, and would have become the first criminal executed in the United States since 1967. His death was stayed at the request of his mother, Bessie Gilmore of Milwaukie, Ore.

Preparation of an appeal in White's case and its consideration by the court could take several months.

White was convicted of murdering a 73-year-old grocery store proprietor in a 1974 holdup. Two teenage customers also were killed during the robbery.

Appearing at a Nov. 1 hearing in which his execution date was set, White told the judge, "If any man deserves to die I do for the crimes I've committed."

White said he wanted Texas to execute him at the earliest possible date.

50 pounds of dynamite found in Mt. Baldy area

Fifty pounds of very unstable dynamite found by Sierra Club hikers near Snow Crest Lodge in the Mt. Baldy area Saturday was removed to San Bernardino by the San Bernardino County Sheriff's bomb squad.

According to West End Sheriff's deputies, a group of hikers was resting on an incline about 100 feet from a group of cabins near the lodge when they noticed a wooden box covered with tar paper protruding from underneath a large rock.

The hikers scraped some of the dirt away from the box and saw the words "explosives" on its side.

The Mt. Baldy Fire Department and West End Sheriff's deputies were called to the scene. The sheriff's bomb squad was called after closer examination of the box revealed about 120 sticks of deteriorated and damp dynamite.

Sheriff's deputies said the dynamite was located less than 100 feet from one cabin and if detonated could have destroyed it and a number of others in the area. Deputies said it was unknown how the dynamite had gotten there but they did learn that the last time dynamite was packed in wooden cases was more than 20 years ago.

Bomb squad members carefully brought the highly unstable dynamite down the mountain side on Mt. Baldy Road and into San Bernardino to a remote area where it was left to dry out until it could be detonated safely.

Man held in robbery

A Cucamonga man was booked in West End Sheriff's jail today in connection with the robbery of a Montclair church pastor last week as the minister was returning home in Cucamonga after going to a bank.

Raul Jimenez Figueroa, 26, of 10254 Humbolt Ave., was taken into custody at the West Valley Municipal Court where he was making a court appearance on another charge, deputies said.

Figueroa is suspected of robbing The Rev. Alfred M. Ingles of the Bethany Baptist Church in Montclair, deputies said. He was identified from a group of mug shots shown the victim by detectives.

In the robbery, Mr. Ingles had just returned home from a Cucamonga bank after making a withdrawal. He was followed by two men. One robber held him with a knife and the other took an envelope containing the cash.

Victim beaten

Ontario police are searching for two men who broke into a home at 916 S. Taylor St. in Ontario Sunday morning, attacked its 72-year-old owner with a board, and took a small amount of cash.

Rosario Olivas, the homeowner, was rushed to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for treatment of multiple head injuries following the 4:38 a.m. incident. He was later released.

Olivas told Ontario police he was sleeping when awakened by noises at his front door. Before he was able to get up to investigate he said one of two men entered his room and began beating him over the head with a board. He said he lost consciousness. When he came too he found that a small amount of cash had been removed from the residence by the robbers.

Olivas described one of the men as a Latin, 18 to 19, 5 feet 8, 180 pounds with brown eyes and black hair. The second man was only described as a Latin.

Loss to the garage was estimated at $4,000, with car loss set at $2,500. Cause of the fire remains under investigation today.

those who have been divorced," a spokesman for the diocese said. "We had so many who were inactive because of so many reasons."

But the primary thrust was at those who left the church because of divorce.

"On the surface, that means they cannot re-marry," said the Rev. Peter Buchianani, head of the diocese's matrimonial tribunal.

"But that does not mean they are without hope. That is where the tribunal comes in. If we can render a decision on annulment, then that person is free to remarry," he said.

In the weeks leading up to Sunday's reconciliation service, Buchianani said his office had noticed a sharp increase in the number of petitions of annulment.

Those who participated in Sunday's reconciliation service are expected to seek help from parish priests to work out individual problems before their reconciliation with the church is considered complete, a spokesman said.

There was no immediate indication as to whether similar services would be held in Roman Catholic churches in other areas.

Names in news

Arthur Fiedler

BOSTON (AP) — Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, is not only a music lover — he's a lifelong fire enthusiast.

The white-haired baton wielder says his interest in blaze-related paraphernalia began with the fire station near his boyhood home which had horsedrawn fire fighting equipment and friendly firemen.

Fiedler has donated most of his extensive and valuable collection of fire equipment to the Boston Museum of Transportation, which opened a special exhibit Saturday with many of Fiedler's treasures on display.

Besides his famous red fire engine, the conductor donated a Japanese matoi, or standard, used by fire fighters to identify different fire companies; a gleaming 19th century brass firefighting helmet from Australia and a "speaking trumpet," or bullhorn, from the same era.

William Saxbe

MECHANICSBURGH, Ohio (AP) — William B. Saxbe, who resigned as ambassador to India, has returned home amid speculation he will seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination in 1978.

But the 60-year-old former U.S. attorney general and senator from Ohio discouraged such talk as he headed for his cattle farm in Champaign County.

"I'm going to Mechanic-sburgh, and I'll make myself available to anyone who wants to hunt, play golf or go fishing," he told reporters in Columbus on Saturday. "It's been about eight years since I left, and I don't contemplate leaving again."

"I think I can make a living without being in politics. I've had 30 years of it since I got out of the Army in 1946. I've dodged all the bullets — legislative difficulties, state corruption, congressional ineptitude and Watergate."

Saxbe's resignation is official Jan. 1. His post in New Delhi will remain vacant until President-elect Carter names a replacement.

Ralph Nader

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says the Justice Department should open an antitrust investigation of recent price increases by the steel industry.

"Not only would you uncover whether the antitrust laws have been violated, but your investigation would also help emphasize the close relationship between corporate concentration and inflation," he and associate Mark Green wrote to the Justice Department.

Several major steel companies recently raised prices by about 6 per cent.

confess and receive absolution. This is usually done in an individual confession to a priest in a sacramental rite that Catholics consider produces forgiveness for sin.

And Catholics who re-marry after divorce are considered to have committed a mortal sin — adultery. In the United States, Catholics who re-marry generally are excommunicated, unless a church tribunal finds grounds to justify the divorce. It has been estimated there may be as many as five million Catholics separate from their church because of divorce.

There was no way to tell how many of those at the Celebration of Reconciliation on Sunday were divorced and barred from receiving sacraments of the church. Participants were not required to give their names.

Sunday's rite had no permanent effect on divorced and re-married Catholics, a spokesman said. The spokesman said the bishop hopes they will seek additional assistance.

The service Sunday climaxed a program begun by Bishop Dozier last July.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — About 12,000 Roman Catholics have been forgiven for past sins in a precedent-setting service designed to lure alienated Catholics back to the church.

It was the first time the Catholic rite of general absolution — in which sins are forgiven without question and without individual confession to a priest — has been used in such a way in the United States. The rite general is used only in times of "grave need," as for soldiers going into battle.

The service at the Mid-South Coliseum on Sunday was aimed primarily at convincing those who left the church because of its position on divorce that the church wants them back, said a spokesman for the Most Rev. Carroll T. Dozier, bishop of Memphis.

"There are many who do not walk with us any longer," Bishop Dozier said in his homily during the two-hour service. "Our goal is to be a minister of reconciliation to them for God whose ambassadors we are."

Catholics who commit mortal, or serious, sins are not eligible to receive Holy Communion until they

Heavy snow in East

By The Associated Press
Heavy snow warnings were posted over south Minnesota, northeast Iowa, south Wisconsin, north Illinois and southwest Michigan this morning, and a winter storm watch was in effect for northern Ohio.
Accumulations of at least four inches of snow were expected by tomorrow.
Travel advisories went up over a wide area in which gusty winds carrying up to three inches of snow were expected to make driving difficult. The advisories extend over the Colorado mountains, northwest Oklahoma through central and northeast Kansas, most of Nebraska, southeastern South Dakota, northern Missouri, most of Iowa through central Minnesota, northern Wisconsin, and north and eastern Michigan.
Dense fog formed over portions of south Texas. Travel advisories warned of reduced visibilities in the San Antonio area and the south plains of Texas.
Overnight, rainshowers moved into the eastern portion of the plains and lower half of the Mississippi valley. In the north half of the Mississippi valley and the western Great Lakes, the precipitation was snow.

Death takes physician, 102

SHARON, Mass. (AP) — Walter Griffin, one of the nation's oldest practicing physicians until he retired in February, is dead at 102.
Griffin died Saturday in Norwood Hospital. A memorial service is scheduled for Wednesday in the auditorium of Sharon High School.
A 1900 graduate of Harvard Medical School, Griffin was Sharon's only physician when he started his practice here in 1901. He still kept office hours seven days a week 75 years later.
Bells in the town's churches rang 100 times in his honor when he passed the century mark, and the American Medical Association praised him for setting "a magnificent example" for his colleagues across the nation.
He is survived by his widow.
"A good newspaper, I suppose, is a nation talking to itself."

Our method for fighting the energy shortage.

Show and tell.

There are some very important things you should know about fighting the energy shortage. And we're going to make it easy for you to learn them.

For example, our Home Energy Conservation Center is coming to a shopping center in your neighborhood.

It's a little house filled with displays that will show you, at a glance, just how much gas you can save in your home. For instance, if you spend an afternoon insulating your attic, you could save up to 20% on your heating bill. And you can save another 16% just by lowering your thermostat from 72° to 68°.

When you see our exhibit, pay us a visit. It will pay off on your gas bill.

If you can't make it to our house, one of our trained energy advisors may make it to yours.

He'll be visiting as many homes as possible to tell you more ways to cut your natural gas consumption. Like installing a water-flow control showerhead. And turning off unnecessary decorative lighting.

If he should show up at your door, and show you the proper identification, take advantage of his expertise. Besides giving out helpful hints, both the Home Energy Conservation Center and our energy advisor will be giving away our Home Energy Planning Guide. It's a free calendar kit designed to keep you energy-wise all year long.

We hope you have the opportunity to see our exhibit or chat with our energy advisor. You'll only be spending a few minutes. And when you see how easy it is to save energy we think you'll agree it's time well spent.

Nobody sitting on fence

Hot tax issue divides Ohio community

GROVEPORT, Ohio (AP) — A campaign here to reopen schoolhouses for 6,800 students who have been out of class since early November is dividing otherwise peaceful neighborhoods and even families. The issue is basic: Whether the residents will pay higher taxes or not.

"There isn't anyone sitting on the fence," a long-time Groveport resident said of the rift in the township over a proposed 70 per cent increase in the taxes paid to support schools.

If the increase is approved on Dec. 7 the schools can reopen the next day. If not, they will remain closed until Jan. 3, 1977 — the beginning of the new fiscal year when new state aid funds are available.

The battle lines formed here demonstrate the resistance of many Americans in recent years to higher taxes of any kind.

Telephone threats have been made; windows soaped; eggs smashed in mailboxes.

"There are nights I don't sleep," said Barbara Groves, whose husband Harold is on the school board. "I don't eat well. Sometimes I just want to sit and cry."

The Groves' household is sharply divided. Harold Groves is on the school board and supports the levy. Mrs. Groves is an outspoken critic. Their 15-year-old son, Robert, first supported it and now opposes it.

"Our taxes would be $200 higher each year for the next five years," she said. "We don't live fancy. When I think what $1,000 could do in this house, I don't want to vote the money."

Her son agrees: "At first I thought Mom didn't care whether I went to school, but then she showed me how much of a sock it would take out of her and Dad's pay."

Voters defeated a smaller tax increase proposal Nov. 2 by a 109-vote margin — 3,797 opposed, 3,688 in favor. Schools closed the next day because the district was broke and could not borrow $739,000 for expenses through December.

Groveport property owners now pay 45.1 mills in taxes per $1,000 assessed value of property. Of this, 19.9 mills goes to the schools. All of the 13.8 mill increase before the voters on Tuesday would go to support the school system.

Schools in Ohio, Oregon and Connecticut have closed this year because of voter reluctance to accept tax hikes. In Ohio, two other small districts have closed, and four others are borderline cases. Officials of the Toledo school system say the classrooms will not open on Dec. 6.

Taxpayer revolts in Oregon forced the shutdown of two school districts enrolling a total of about 6,100 students. A third Oregon district closed in late September, but reopened following approval Nov. 2 of a tax increase.

Schools in Putnam, Conn., were closed to 1,500 students.

The Groveport-Madison district comprises largely working-class families, farmers and elderly persons in the town of Groveport and parts of surrounding areas. The voters have rejected five tax increases for schools since 1968 — three in the past two years alone.

Opponents of the Nov. 2 levy increase in Groveport say they voted down the increase because they didn't believe that the schools could not make ends meet.

The closing of the area's 12 schools put 326 teachers and 185 other employees out of work, but Harold Groves says the voters "still think we're just making threats. They think we've got to be kidding them and, if not, the state's going to bail us out."

The state legislature has passed a bill easing borrowing restrictions and permitting schools to reopen Dec. 8 but only if the new levy is approved.

Charles Dean, school clerk-treasurer, said, "The ($6.3 million) budget this year was cut to the bone as it was. We decided to operate until we ran out of money. The people had their choice — raise the levy or face closing the schools."

"My parents voted for the last levy," said Jeremiah Gunn, 18-year-old basketball co-captain. "It's quite a disappointment to be out of school."

Doctors Prove You Can Help Shrink Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due To Inflammation. Relieve Pain And Itch Too.

Gives prompt temporary relief from hemorrhoidal pain and itch in many cases.

Doctors have found a most effective medication that actually helps shrink painful swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by infection. In many cases, the first applications give prompt relief for hours from such pain and burning itching.

Tests by doctors on hundreds upon hundreds of patients showed this to be true in many cases. The medication the doctors used was Preparation H — the same Preparation H you can get without a prescription. Ointment or suppositories.

Gunn said state school regulations bar the team from practicing in the school gym and competing in games while academic classes are suspended.

The sports program is often cited by levy opponents who claim the district lives beyond its means.

"Extracurricular activities seem to overshadow what it is kids are supposed to be in school for," said Mary Mick. "They put in an all-weather track, tennis courts, nonskid basketball courts. There's nothing left for operating."

Mrs. Mick, 59, spearheads a group called Citizens for Better Schools for Less Money, which wants a close look at the district's financial status.

School officials say part of their problem stems from an earlier brush with financial trouble that was averted by an infusion of more state money than expected. "We lost a lot of credibility after that because we announced we had to cut athletics and then didn't," said Steve Drummond, assistant superintendent.

"I want to know exactly where my tax dollar is going," said Judith Bailey, 36, the mother of four school-aged youngsters. "I know this will hurt the children now, but in the end they will benefit."

Revolutionary tank gun being explored by Pentagon experts

Pentagon scientists are exploring a new concept for a rapid-firing tank cannon that could revolutionize armor warfare late in this century.
Scientists and engineers of the Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency are working on such a lightweight gun for the tank generation beyond the new XM1 tank now being developed. Years of work lie ahead before the concept can be translated into combat hardware, they say.

This long-range project shows that Pentagon specialists believe the tank still will be a potent weapon 20 years from now, despite the growth and increased sophistication of antitank weaponry.
However, some congressmen have questioned whether the tank is not already obsolescent on the modern battlefield in light of severe Israeli tank losses during the 1973 Mideast war. Antitank missiles accounted for many of those losses.

Pentagon specialists say an automatic cannon would give the tank a huge increase in combat effectiveness because it would enable gunners to get in many shots in the decisive first few moments of a battle when, according to historical analysis, many tank "kills" are scored.

Big tank guns now are loaded one shot at a time. At the heart of the new concept is a combination of new types of lightweight ammunition with special armor-penetrating properties and a relatively small caliber gun with very high muzzle velocity. Many of the technical details are being kept secret.
Sources say the gun would not kick a lot and would have a barrel about 70 millimeters in diameter, compared with today's 105, 115 and 120mm cannon used in North Atlantic Alliance and Soviet bloc tanks.

With a smaller gun and lighter ammunition, experts say, future tanks could be reduced dramatically in weight and size.

Carter aide researching impact over pardons for draft evaders

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — The man helping President-elect Jimmy Carter formulate a pardon for Vietnam-era draft evaders is a Houston lawyer who has handled court cases dealing with the military draft and protests against the Vietnam war.

The Carter aide, David Berg, has been assigned to research what has been done in the past to offer pardons and the potential impact the Carter pardon will have, according to Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary.

Berg, 34, is on leave from his Houston law firm to assist in Carter's transition to the presidency. In addition to his work on the pardon issue, Berg is one of Carter's transition representatives with the Justice Department.

Carter has said he would issue a pardon rather than declare amnesty to draft violators because, he said, amnesty indicates that what the evaders had done was right, while a pardon only indicates forgiveness and offers an opportunity to begin again.

Carter has promised that he will issue a pardon to draft violators during the first week of his administration, which begins with his inauguration on Jan. 20.

But he has said his pardon program would not extend to military deserters, who will be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Powell said over the weekend that Carter's action in assigning Berg to the pardon work shows the president-elect's determination to keep his campaign promises.

One of Berg's first cases after he graduated from law school involved a war protest, and he ended up taking it to the U.S. Supreme Court. He also performed legal work for men involved in disputes with the Selective Service System.

Among the issues being examined in connection with Carter's planned pardon is the number of men who would be affected. For example, if the pardon were extended to men who failed to register initially for the draft, the magnitude of the Carter program would be substantially larger than if the pardon were limited to those who had registered but who had failed to report for induction.

President Ford established a clemency program in 1974 to give outright pardons or pardons conditioned on a term of public service work to draft evaders and military deserters. More than 113,000 men were eligible for the program, but fewer than 22,000 men applied. The program ended in September 1975.

Steelers pull for Raiders tonight

Progress Bulletin Sports

Pomona, California ■ Monday, December 6, 1976

By the Associated Press
The Pittsburgh Steelers continue to chew up the opposition and pray for a miracle. Tonight they will play in front of a television set.

"We're going to try to win the Raiders to victory," said Pittsburgh linebacker Andy Russell. "We'll be the biggest bunch of cheerleaders the Oakland Raiders ever had."

Oakland plays Cincinnati tonight and a Bengals' victory probably would mean no playoffs for the Steelers.

"I'm going to watch the ball game," said tackle Joe Greene, "but I'm ready to go South," referring to his home in Texas. "I think Oakland is going to play to win, but they have nothing to lose or gain and I just can't see them beating Cincinnati under those conditions."

But he will be rooting for the Raiders, anyway. The Steelers, having rebounded from a disastrous 1-4 start with eight straight victories, including Sunday's 42-0 rout of winless Tampa Bay, are the hottest team in the National Football League. They have allowed only 28 points over those eight games. But unless Cincinnati loses one of its last two games, the Steelers, Super Bowl champions for the past two years, will not make the playoffs.

Since Cincinnati plays the lowly New York Jets next week, tonight's game should decide the American Football Conference Central Division crown and the final AFC playoff spot. Pittsburgh is 9-4. Cincinnati is 9-3. The Steelers will win the division if they end in a tie with the Bengals.

So the most important game of Pittsburgh's season will be played in Oakland tonight and the Steelers will sit and watch ... and pray.

Wide receiver Lynn Swann, who caught his first two touchdown passes of the season Sunday, has no love for either club. Swann suffered a concussion against Oakland this year and got in a fight against Cincinnati.

"I hope they beat each other to a pulp and Cincinnati loses," said Swann.

Meanwhile, New England dumped New Orleans 27-6, insuring itself of its first playoff berth. If the Patriots win next week and Baltimore loses, New England will win the AFC East. If not, the Patriots will get into the playoffs as a wild card team.

Dallas wrapped up the National Football Conference East Division title with a 26-7 victory over Philadelphia. Washington kept its playoff hopes alive with a 37-16 romp over the New York Jets and Cleveland remained in the running for a playoff spot by edging Houston 13-10.

Elsewhere, Minnesota topped Green Bay 20-9, Miami outlasted Buffalo 45-27, San Diego downed San Francisco 13-7 in overtime, Denver shaded Kansas City 17-16, the New York Giants beat Detroit 24-10 and Chicago rocked Seattle 34-7.

In Saturday's games, St. Louis beat Baltimore 24-17 and Los Angeles embarrassed Atlanta 59-0.

Patriots 27, Saints 6
Steve Grogan ran for two touchdowns and threw for two for New England. Grogan has run for 11 TDs this season, tying him with Johnny Lujack of Chicago (1960) and Tobin Rote of Green Bay (1956) for the NFL record for quarterbacks. Fullback Don Calhoun, continuing to fill in for the injured Sam Cunningham, ran for 113 yards in 22 carries, his fourth straight 100-yard plus effort.

"I'm an awfully happy man," said New England coach Chuck Fairbanks. "This is my biggest thrill ever," said owner Billy Sullivan. "This is a frustrating loss for us," grumbled Saints' Coach Hank Stram.

Cowboys 28, Eagles 7
Roger Staubach completed 22 of 29 passes for 253 yards and one touchdown as Dallas wrapped up its division championship for the eighth time in the last 11 years. Philadelphia managed only 42 yards through the air.

"Phew, I'm glad it's over," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "We had to win today, otherwise we'd have had our backs to the wall next week."

Redskins 37, Jets 16
Billy Kilmer threw for three touchdowns and John Riggins carried 19 times for 104 yards and scored twice against his former teammates. Washington is tied with St. Louis at 9-4 in the NFC East but has beaten the Cardinals twice this season. Thus, the Redskins can wrap up the NFC wild card playoff berth next Sunday by beating Dallas.

"We did what we had to do here," said Washington Coach George Allen, "and now it's on to Dallas to do what we have to do there."

Browns 13, Oilers 16
Brian Sipe tossed a 37-yard touchdown pass to Paul Warfield and Don Cockroft booted a pair of clutch field goals as surprising Cleveland won its fifth straight game, keeping its playoff hopes mathematically alive. The Browns can get into the playoffs only if they win their final

Cano named to U.S. team

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marine Cano, the Los Angeles Skyhawks goalie, Friday was named to the United States national soccer team by U.S. Coach Walt Chyzowich, a team spokesman said.

game and both Pittsburgh and Cincinnati lose theirs. The Cleveland defense held Houston to just 56 yards rushing.

"We've run on Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and others, but we didn't run well today," said Houston Coach Bum Phillips.

Vikings 20, Packers 9
Minnesota returned a punt in total offense to just 144 for Green Bay but needed a pair of one-yard touchdown plunges by Chuck Foreman in the fourth quarter to ice the game, played during a snowstorm with temperatures in the teens.

"If I had done my job, we would have won the game," said Packers' quarterback Carlos Brown, who was outpassed 195-93 yards by the Vikings' Fran Tarkenton.

Dolphins 45, Bills 27
Freddie Solomon returned a punt 79 yards for one touchdown, ran 59 yards from scrimmage for another and scored a third on a 53-yard pass play for Miami. That helped offset another brilliant show by Buffalo's O.J. Simpson, who carried 24 times for 203 yards. It was Simpson's sixth 200-yard game, an NFL record. He gained 111 yards in the first quarter alone. Don Strock, who went all the way at quarterback in place of Bob Griese for the Dolphins, threw for two TDs and ran for a third.

Solomon said it is easier to relax when there is no playoff pressure. "I'm not as tight and jittery. There is no burden," he said. "We're going out to win and have some fun. I did today."

Chargers 13, 49ers 7
Mercury Morris capped a nine-play, 93-yard San Diego drive by racing 13 yards around left end for a touchdown five minutes into overtime. Rickey Young picked up 40 yards in the drive in four carries.

"Winning means it is happiness instead of dejection," said Chargers' Coach Tommy Prothro.

Broncos 17, Chiefs 16
Rookie Craig Penrose, making his first NFL start, threw a pair of touchdown passes, but it took a 20-yard field goal by Jim Turner midway through the final quarter to give Denver its eighth victory of the season—the most ever for the Broncos. Mike Livingston passed for the first Kansas City touchdown and ran for the second.

Giants 24, Lions 10
Craig Morton hooked up with Ed Marshall on touchdown passes of 35 and 11 yards as New York, 3-10 overall, evened its record at 3-3 under Coach John McVay. Detroit, which lost the ball three times on fumbles and twice on pass interceptions, fell to 6-7.

"I'm upset. We showed a lack of character. We didn't concentrate and that's all I want to say," said Detroit Coach Tommy Hudspeth.

Bears 34, Seahawks 7
Walter Payton rambled for 183 yards on 27 carries and Bob Avellini fired three touchdown passes within a three-minute span in the third quarter for Chicago. Payton, who had 114 yards in the first half, has gained 1,341 yards this season, breaking the club record of 1,231 set by Gale Sayers in 1966.

"The key to the game was Payton's running in the first half," said Chicago Coach Jack Pardee. "That seemed to loosen things up."

Red Sox want Vida Blue
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, who were foiled in their attempt to land some of Charlie Finley's top talent last season, now have set their sights on acquiring Oakland pitching ace Vida Blue.

Most baseball officials were on hand Sunday for baseball's annual meetings which officially began today. Finley, whose A's have been depleted through defections, was not due until Tuesday, by which time the trading market should swing into full gear.

American League pennant but slipped to third place this year, realize they will have to make some moves to keep close to the 1976 champion New York Yankees. The Yanks grabbed two prize plums among the free agents—slugger Reggie Jackson and pitcher Don Gullett.

Baltimore, which finished second in the AL East, is considerably weaker with the loss of Jackson, second baseman Bobby Grich and 20-game winner Wayne Garland.

Finley dealt Blue to the Yankees last June 15 for $1.5 million only to have the deal nullified by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. The commissioner also killed Finley's $2 million sale of outfielder Joe Rudi and reliever Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox on the same day. Finley is suing Kuhn and the case is scheduled to go to court in Chicago Dec. 13.

Subsequently Finley lost Rudi, Fingers, third baseman Sal Bando, catcher-first baseman Gene Tenace, shortstop Bert Campaneris and outfielder Don Baylor through the free agency route.

So Dinley is looking for players to restock his club which won the world championship in 1972, 1973 and 1974. If Red Sox Vice President Dick O'Connell can wrap up a deal giving Finley a couple of players for Blue, Finley should be interested. The Red Sox, unhappy at Denny Doyle's play at second base, also would like to latch onto the A's Phil Garner, one of only three holdover Oakland starters remaining.

Boston might be willing to give up first baseman Cecil Cooper, outfielder Rick Miller and third baseman Rico Petrocelli in a package deal involving Blue.

Meantime, the Yankees are pressing to pry loose shortstop Toby Harrah from the Texas Rangers. The Yanks have an overabundance of outfielders and a front-line pitcher to offer.

"We came here to get a shortstop," said Yankees President Gabe Paul, "and I feel we have a 50-50 chance of getting one."

Philadelphia is seeking a second baseman to replace Dave Cash, who signed with Montreal, as a free agent. The Chicago Cubs reportedly turned down a deal which would give them slugger Greg Luzinski for outfielder Rick Muniz and second baseman Manny Trillo.

In another proposed transaction, the San Francisco Giants would like to pick up pitcher Jim Umberger and Gaylord Perry from Texas for outfielder Bobby Murcer and shortstop Chris Speier.

Others reported on the block include: Cleveland's George Hendrick, Baltimore's Paul Blair and Jeff Burroughs of Texas, all outfielders.

In Sunday's only development of note, the Chicago White Sox signed Royle Stillman, an outfielder-first baseman, to a one-year contract. He became the fourth free agent to reach terms with the Sox. He spent most of the year at Rochester of the International League and batted .292.

In addition to today's draft of minor league eligibles, other matters on the agenda this week include realignment of the American League into three divisions for 1978; whether to extend the contract of National League President Chub Feeney; the designated hitter rule, and an earlier start to the World Series.

Sweeping changes may bolster Olympic teams

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1980 United States Olympic teams may be the best prepared in the country's history.

Sweeping changes in the program by the USOC's Executive Committee were approved during a two-day weekend session.

"We can't maintain the status quo," said Philip Krumm, USOC president. "I think we've taken a dynamic approach to improving our program for athletes over the weekend."

Part of that approach was approval for locating an all-year training site at Squaw Valley, Calif.

And Colonel Don Miller, the

Bobick, Norton agree to fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Duane Bobick will fight Ken Norton instead of Muhammad Ali in Madison Square Garden sometime between Feb. 15 and March 2, the Garden announced today.

This means that Ali's waning retirement is still in effect, although he had signed a contract to fight Bobick.

Ali was scheduled to talk to a news conference by telephone, and a source said the champion would tell reporters once again that he has retired.

The Norton-Bobick fight is scheduled for 12 rounds. However, the management of the two fighters reportedly could seek New York State Athletic Commission sanction to make the fight a title bout. In that case, it would be 15 rounds.

The unbeaten Bobick, managed by former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, and Norton, who lost a controversial decision to Ali last Sept. 28, signed about Nov. 19 to fight.

But Ali then entered the picture. The heavyweight champion, who announced Oct. 1 in Turkey that he was retiring, said in Houston Nov. 22 that he would fight again.

On Nov. 23, Teddy Brenner, president of Madison Square Garden Boxing, Inc., said Ali had called him about fighting Bobick and had asked Brenner to come to Houston, where the champion was filming his life's story.

Ali signed to fight Bobick, according to Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., which would have handled the closed-circuit telecast of the fight. Ali's purse reportedly was $2.5 million.

USOC's executive director, said that he hopes to have three training centers in operation before the 1980 Summer Games in Moscow.

"The specifics of our programs are still in the development stage," said Miller. "But we'd like the governing bodies of each sport in our organization to determine the eventual scheduling and utilization of the facilities."

"It is vital to our program to have national training centers available to our athletes at no cost to them," said Miller, who announced that a contract for the utilization of facilities at Squaw Valley nearly was completed.

Squaw Valley was the site for the 1960 Winter Olympics and many of the facilities utilized there still are available. In addition, cooperation of local officials has been given toward preparing programs and additional facilities.

Another major item to help the athletes, announced by Krumm, was implementing a job opportunities program which would seek permanent employment in industry for athletes who have the potential to represent the nation on an international level.

According to Krumm, 40 major industrial firms have indicated a desire to cooperate in the program. "We have realized that we must do something to enable our best athletes to continue competing after they complete their college education," said Krumm. "This hasn't always been possible due to financial pressures. Our athletes are getting older each year. An Olympics is mainly for men and women, except for some of our younger swimmers."

Krumm, Miller and Bob Kane, who was nominated to be the group's next president, all pointed out that the programs are all quite new for this country.

"We'll be depending on American industry to support us," said Kane. "We don't feel amateur athletics should be run by our government and we feel the ideas which have moved forward from the meeting will enable us to maintain a position at the top of the world in future international competition."

Other sites that may be utilized as training sites include one at Lake Placid, N.Y., site of the 1980 Winter Olympics, and Colorado Springs, Colo., where the National Rifle Association is developing a sports center.

"Moves like those taken this weekend are long overdue," said three-time Olympian Willie Davenport, who attended the meeting.

port, who attended the meeting as a representative of the athletes. "But I still think more attention must be given to the Junior Olympics so that our athletes may be developed at the grassroots level like they are in some other nations."

"If all our programs pull together like I see it," said Miller, "we'll be able to generate monies from many sources. But, a centralized concept is essential. We're probably 18 to 24 months away from having the programs operate like we'd like, but we've made major strides in a short time. The site at Squaw Valley wasn't even suggested to us until late in September."

"We need facilities that can house athletes at little or no cost, provide food and also establish a sports medicine facility. We don't have millions of dollars to spend on building facilities, ski trails, skating arenas, tracks, etc. We're planning on using these facilities for both Summer and Winter sports," Miller said.

The Squaw Valley facility can house 360 athletes and it has a dining room that can seat 1,000. In addition, there is room for administrative offices.

"We'll need procedures to decide what athletes go to the facilities, how long they'll stay there, etc.," Miller said. He estimated that the USOC would spend approximately $350,000 implementing the facilities at Squaw Valley within the next year, but that the cost would be considerably less in future years.

"We have money for development in our budget that covers this program," said Miller. "But, we're still going to have to look at the expense of getting an athlete to the site. This is a long-range program and we have to move rapidly. I'd estimate that we'd be going at full speed by this spring."

Ballard wins MVP selection

Oregon's Greg Ballard, a senior from Pomona's Garey High, was voted the Most Valuable Player in the Sun Devil Classic in Tempe, Ariz. Saturday night after leading the Ducks to the championship.

Ballard scored 10 of his 16 points in the second half to lead Oregon to a 57-47 win over host Arizona State in the championship game. He also scored 16 points in Friday's opening round 57-49 win over Wichita State.

Tourneys keep cage fans busy

Two big local basketball tournaments — the Upland-Montclair Tournament and the San Dimas Tournament of Champions — highlight the busiest week in valley high school basketball.

The busy schedule starts today with just two games. Chino, consolation title winner in last week's Mt. Helix Invitational Tournament, was scheduled to visit South Hills today at 4:45 p.m., and Walnut will begin action in the Garden Grove Tournament tonight at 8:15 against Laguna Beach. That tourney will continue through Thursday.

The 17th annual Upland-Montclair Tournament begins Tuesday, with nine local squads among the field of 16.

Action will take place at both Upland High and Montclair Tuesday through Thursday, with the finals set for Montclair's gym Friday.

Chaffey will face San Gabriel Tuesday in the Arroyo Tournament, which will also run through Friday.

Three area schools — Ontario Christian, Webb and La Verne Lutheran — are entered in the Western Christian Tournament at the Glendora campus. That tournament begins Thursday and runs through Saturday.

American Christian is entered in the Riverside Christian Tournament, which also runs Thursday through Saturday.

The seeded portion of the San Dimas Tournament of Champions will begin Friday, with two local squads among the eight involved. The seeded portion, for small schools (the large 4A powerhouses will be in next week's open portion) will be held at San Dimas High Friday and Saturday, but will switch to La Verne College's Supertent for Monday's finals.

The tourney will begin at 3 p.m. Friday, with South Hills meeting El Dorado. Host San Dimas will play Victor Valley at 5 p.m. Damien will meet Moreno Valley at 7 p.m. and Mira Costa will play Dana Hills at 9 p.m.

Garey will shoot for its third consecutive title in the Upland-Montclair tourney. The Vikings will have to get by strong Ganesha and Alta Loma teams, among others, to successfully defend their title.

Alta Loma (2-0) brings the best record into the tournament.

There will be four games at each gym Tuesday and Wednesday, with three at each Thursday.

The final four games will be played at Montclair Friday beginning with the fourth-place game at 3:15 p.m. The third-place game is set for 4:45, the consolation title game will go at 6:30 and the championship finals will begin at 8 p.m.

Abuses are investigated

The Social Security Administration fully investigates all reports of fraudulent abuse of the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program, said Lorraine Brannen, district manager of the Pomona office.

"The SSI program was created by Congress to make monthly cash payments to aged, blind and disabled people who had limited income and resources," said Mrs. Brannen.

"While we have found that most people are honest, occasionally someone attempts to collect SSI payments by concealing reportable income such as a pension or by hiding a bank account that exceeds the $1,500 limit that a SSI recipient can legally have."

Mrs. Brannen assured the public that all SSI fraud complaints will be investigated. Complaints can be made by mail to the Social Security Office at 445 East Holt Ave. or by calling the office at 629-4021. The Social Security Administration is part of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Basketball registration

Girl's basketball registration is taking place through Jan. 22, at the La Verne recreation office, 2039 Third St.

All players will receive basketball T-shirts for uniforms. For further information call 593-4571.

Ballet class for girls

Winter camp scheduled

Registration is under way for the West End YMCA's winter camp to be held Dec. 27-30 at Camp Oakes, Big Bear Lake, for boys and girls in grades four to eight.

The program will feature varied activities under the supervision of trained leaders.

Some of the activities planned include sledding, games, crafts, movies, saucers, campfires, archery, songs and skits, and weather permitting playing in the snow.

The camp features food, heated winter dorms and warm indoor space.

The cost is $29 for members and $39 for non-members. A pre-camp information meeting will be held Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. at the Y, 215 West C St., Ontario.

A list of desired equipment is available on registration at the Y.

Children may earn their way to camp by selling YMCA peanuts now available at the Y.

Oswald: "Good players tend to overbid to game. They expect to play the hand well and they also look for help from the defenders."

Jim: "South's two notrump bid was based on the above theory. He did hold eleven high-card points, but there were no kings, only one ace and a worthless doubleton in his partner's rebid suit. East had made a really poor diamond overcall and if West had opened a diamond South would have romped home. Instead West led his fourth best heart. East took his ace and led back the eight spot. South played low since dummy's jack was there to protect his queen. If West had played correctly and stuck in the ten, South would have had no play for his contract and probably would have gone down two. But for some unaccountable reason West rose with the king and led back a heart to South's queen."

Pomona killer tracked:

Diligent detectives pursue leads in slaying of Chino woman

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

The brutal slaying of Mrs. Myrna Van Klaveren in a Pomona optometrist's office is now more than a year old, but the passage of time has not diluted the dedication of the investigating officers to find her killer.

And, in that pursuit, they have resorted to some unusual methods including hypnosis and space-age technology.

The 36-year-old Chino woman was found stabbed to death in the office where she worked at 240 S. Main St., just below the Pomona Mall. The date was Sept. 23, 1975, and the time was late that morning. She was working alone that day.

Mrs. Van Klaveren, the mother of three daughters, died as the result of "multiple stab wounds." The body of the secretary-receptionist was found lying on the floor inside the small office. The discovery was made by a customer.

Police found the office cash drawer and the victim's purse lying near the body, and speculated that robbery may have been the motive. But further investigation changed that theory and others in the course of the laborious search which has continued since that day.

Detective Sgt. Carl Jackson estimated recently that investigators have interviewed 150 persons in connection with the case and individuals living as far away as Washington and Texas have been contacted. At one time, Fresno became the center of the investigation as detectives followed leads involving persons who were in Pomona at the time of the murder as participants in the Los Angeles County Fair and who had moved on to Fresno.

But, as the investigation progressed, police found that there were few things of which they could be certain. One was that there had been no sexual attack so one motive was abandoned. Robbery seemed a likely reason for the slaying and officers at first believed the killer took about $50. But they learned later that as far as anyone knew, nothing was missing.

Another detail that police no longer are certain of is the belief that the killer was black.

That theory was based on a connection investigators made between Mrs. Van Klaveren's slaying and a knife attack outside the restroom of a nearby savings and loan association building a few days earlier. But officers now say they do not know for certain that the black man involved in the savings and loan attack was the person who killed Mrs. Van Klaveren.

Detective Elias Valdez, who has headed the investigation since it began, said police do not even know for certain that the killer was a man.

"It could have been someone who entered the office to rob the place and was scared off after the killing. It could have been someone she knew, or it could have been a juvenile, not an adult. We really don't know because no one has been found who saw the person."

But in spite of a lack of specifics, police have gathered an impressive amount of information in connection with the case. They have put in at least 1,000 man-hours in search of the killer, Jackson estimated.

Some of the unusual steps taken in an attempt to solve the murder included:

—The use of hypnosis on the savings and loan employee in an attempt to help her better recall the features of her attacker.

—An attempt to improve upon the photo of that woman's attacker recorded by the savings and loan's camera monitor. Unsuccessful attempts were made both at a film processing firm in Hollywood and by technicians at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Lab.

—The use of the services of Claremont Men's College professor Dr. Michael J. Seven in an attempt to analyze all the information police had acquired and project certain possibilities they should pursue.

—And the compilation by technicians at the state Department of Criminal Identification and Information of six five-foot charts plotting all the information investigators had gathered from the beginning until the present time.

Those charts, called Visual Investigative Aids, took a month to compile and afford to anyone called into the investigation the ability to scan graphically and in five-minute increments all the information police have gathered since one hour before the woman was killed up to the present time.

And in spite of setbacks and the disappointment of leads that petered out, investigators still are anxious to receive any bit of information which may lead them to the killer. Valdez said such information is coming in more infrequently now, but it still is coming in.

And Jackson said, "Of course the older the case gets, the more difficult it is to obtain new information. Time is not on our side. But the case is still open, has been open from the beginning and will remain open until we arrest and prosecute successfully the person who killed Mrs. Van Klaveren."

Animal barns spellbinding for many area youngsters

By VONNE ROBERTSON

It's not exactly McDonald's Farm, but the animal barns at Cal Poly Pomona are spellbinding to youngsters visiting the university's agriculture unit.

In a new program sponsored by the Agricultural Business Management Club, preschool children and their parents are invited to the campus to view a horse show and become personally acquainted with sheep, pigs and cows.

"Club members are concerned with a declining public image of agriculture by city dwellers," said Riley C. Walter, club adviser.

"Would you believe that I was raised in Glendora and never saw a pig until I came to Cal Poly?" asked Patty Hallidy, a junior majoring in agriculture business management.

"When I told people I was an agriculture major, they just stared at me. They had no idea what the course included or why a student would be involved," added Miss Hallidy.

The student club decided to remedy the situation by inviting preschool children and their parents to the campus on a Sunday afternoon as a "get-acquainted day."

Sally Berg, a recreation administration major at Cal Poly, arranged with the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department to invite preschoolers from local schools which operate day care centers and their parents to attend the first program.

"We had cooperation from everyone in planning the first visit," Miss Hallidy reported.

As an introduction, the 35 preschool students and parents viewed three films about animals.

Then Norman K. Dunn, manager of the W.K. Kellogg Arabian Horse Center, admitted the group to front row seats at the Sunday afternoon horse show. The group saw the Arabian horses perform their widely lauded feats.

From the horse show, the guests toured the agriculture units where many youngsters enjoyed their first personal contact with lambs and pigs.

Miss Hallidy said that both the children and the animals seemed to enjoy the experience.

The event was called a great success by David Claverie, the club's community service chairman.

"Parents and the children loved it. They have a better understanding of agriculture and everyone wanted to know how soon we were going to sponsor another Agriculture Day," Claverie said.

Miss Halliday said that the 75 members of the club are already planning the next tour. She added that, because everyone worked together, it was well organized.

"We had as much fun as anyone else."

Home loan program mulled

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A reduced interest loan program to encourage housing rehabilitation is among the projects for which Claremont City Manager Norman R. King thinks that the city might spend some of the $175,000 to $200,000 estimated Housing and Community Act funds it expects during fiscal 1977-78.

Claremont's share of federal funds through the act as administered by the county is $66,000 for fiscal 1976-77, small in comparison to the funds available the following year.

King will give to the Claremont City Council for its Dec. 14 meeting a schedule of proposed priorities and costs for the 1977-78 program.

Residents will be invited to make their suggestions on how the money should be spent.

King said that he believes that a large amount of the increased funding should be "funneled directly to house-related activities, not only because this carries out the primary purpose of the act, but because I believe such expenditures will maximize economic and social benefits to Claremont residents."

King said that in the past two years many cities have implemented reduced interest loan programs to cut down the cost of homeownership and to encourage housing rehabilitation.

After reviewing several types of programs, King said the 312 program is particularly attractive because it may be contracted with the county or a private agency, meaning that the city will not have to hire extra staff to administer it, and that it appears that for every dollar invested in the program, about $6 to $10 can be expected in the form of increased investment in Claremont.

He said that the city would retain the option to set priorities in regard to eligibility of various residents.

He has asked the council to amend the city's 1976-77 program and re-allocate $14,000 tentatively set aside for increased building code enforcement to the funding of the 312 program for the last four of five months of fiscal 1976-77.

As to Claremont residents taking advantage of the program, King said that "I would like to test the market and go slowly."

He said it appears the average loan would be between $8,000 and $10,000. King explained that the section 312 program is a direct federal rehabilitation loan at three per cent simple interest with up to 20 years to repay.

The cost of a 20-year loan per $1,000 of work would come to $5.55 a month, King explained.

Loan maximums are set at $17,400 per unit.

Loans are limited to owner-occupants of one to four units, and whose income falls below established figures set by the federal government.

King said he feels the program is extremely beneficial to Claremont because the city's act allotment is too low to "induce leverage in the private sector."

King explained that the program will bring properties of those who qualify up to code standards.

He said the reduced interest loan program would be a "positive arm in the code enforcement and rental housing maintenance certificate programs that otherwise would have a punitive effect upon those property owners who could not otherwise afford to make required repairs."

As to the rental unit occupancy inspection program, King said the city staff has completed an external survey and learned that about 60 residential properties in the city fall

Progress Bulletin

Pomona, California ■ Monday, December 6, 1976

in the deferred-maintenance, sub-standard, or dilapidated categories.

"It would appear that housing condition in Claremont are at a relatively high level," King said.

He explained that half of the properties falling into the need repair status are rental structures, and that the Claremont Lanai or Townhouse which were sub-standard when the survey was performed are counted as one structure although they have 120 units.

King said it would be extremely prudent to begin a low-key small-scale maintenance certificate program for most rental unit in the city.

King is proposing that the program be supported by act funds. About 600 of the 2,400 rental units could be inspected annually.

"The city has an obligation to insure that houses structurally or mechanically deficient not be rented or sold to unsuspecting persons," King said.

King is proposing that $8,000 to $10,000 be allocated for a street tree replacement program which would go a long way in enabling the city to plant young street trees in locations where trees have been removed and not replaced.

King also is proposing that the city spend money for the design of esthetically-pleasing as well as noise-inhibiting barriers that would be placed when funds are available on the north side of the San Bernardino Freeway from city limit to city limit.

King feels that another appropriate use of community act funds would be a survey of Claremont historical resources, with the city paying half and the state the other half.

The city this year will spend its $66,000 of community act funds as follows: Wheeler Park supervision, $7,500; wheelchair ramps and sidewalk repair, $10,000; housing information, $3,000; neighborhood participation, $3,000; home insulation demonstration program, $10,000; parcel file, $4,500; land use and development code enforcement, $9,000; building code enforcement, $14,000; program planning, $3,500; and partial funding of city noise ordinance, $1,500.

Nod goes to nuclear energy

Despite the emphatic rejection of "antinuclear" referenda by voters in six states last month, the debate over the future of nuclear energy in this country is far from finished.

The public — that part of it which has spoken on this issue by way of the ballot box — has given at least a tentative okay to continued nuclear development. So far, at any rate, it has not been swayed by the warnings of environmentalists and others concerning the possible health and safety perils of nuclear power plants.

All this is subject to change, however. Antinuclear activists are gearing up for similar battles in other states, and in the meantime one new argument has been dropped into the controversy.

According to a report just issued by the private, nonprofit Council of Economic Priorities, nuclear power plants are so uneconomical that more attention should be given to alternative energy sources, such as solar energy, which have been downgraded as too expensive or too far in the future.

Nuclear power plants are forced to shut down so frequently for maintenance and repairs, says the Council, that nuclear energy is less economical than coal everywhere in the country except in the Northeast.

Specifically, it found that existing commercial nuclear power plants operate at an average of only 59 per cent of capacity compared to 60 to 70 per cent for coal-fired plants. Efficiency is even less for large nuclear plants, and most plants currently being constructed or planned are large ones.

This, too, may be subject to change as nuclear technology improves, and coal has its own environmental drawbacks. But the Council's report has certainly deflated industry claims about the supposed cost advantages of nuclear energy versus coal.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that we are moving, however slowly and uncertainly, into the era of nuclear energy. Today, nuclear power generates some 10 per cent of the nation's electricity — enough to meet the needs of 23 million typical households. By this time next year, industry sources predict, the figure will be in the neighborhood of 30 million.

As the industry is not slow to point out, each additional megawatt of nuclear-generated electricity means that much less dependence on foreign oil.

Thus until such time as antinuclear forces can point to some significant breakthroughs in solar energy, coal gasification or other types of advanced power technologies, it is likely that the public will continue to give a hopeful, if not entirely enthusiastic, go-ahead to nuclear energy.

CB's aren't obsolete

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has warned consumers to be wary of Citizens Band radios offered at big discounts this month.

Most CB sets on the market today will be obsolete next January, it says, when the number of channels allotted to Citizens Band use will be raised from 23 to 40. Some 23-channel sets now being sold can be converted by the manufacturer to handle the expanded frequencies (for an extra charge), but most won't.

Potential CBers should be aware of this, of course. But if anyone is scared off from making a good buy on a discounted set because he thinks it will be "obsolete" in a few weeks, the FTC will have done him a disservice.

The 23-channel CB radio will be no more obsolete when 40-channel sets come on the market than AM radios became obsolete when FM arrived or VHF television sets became obsolete when UHF was added.

Channel nine will continue to be reserved for emergency CB communications and truckers and other highway travelers will continue to make their initial contacts on channel 19.

Not only that, but 23-channel sets may even be more useful in the future as some of the heavy radio traffic is gradually siphoned off by the new channels.

Think on these things

Every day we go around buying pictures — pictures on food containers, pictures in catalogues, pictures in advertisements — mental pictures of what we could look like, how we could be in all sorts of dire situations. And yet, when someone instructs us to use our power of imagination to make pictures in our minds of how we would like to be, our first thought is — How can I see myself as something I know I cannot be?

We are far better at seeing ourselves in trouble than we are in picturing ourselves rising above difficulty — unscathed and successful. We give in to what could go wrong instead of insisting that something go right. We program ourselves every day either to go up or down — to win or to lose. It is up to us individually which picture to buy.

Too close for comfort

WASHINGTON — President-elect Jimmy Carter, if he accepts the advice of his energy experts, will attempt to curtail America's increasing reliance on nuclear energy and oil. Energy needs in the near future, they believe, can best be met by better exploitation of our abundant coal reserves.

That posture, if adopted, will be viewed with mixed emotions by the beleaguered people of Appalachia, the heart of the strip mining country. These proud mountain people fully realize they need the jobs that mining brings, but they are distraught over the destruction that comes in its wake. Most do not want to see strip mining banned, but they would like it to be better regulated to protect themselves and the land they love.

Large areas of these forested mountain ranges have been turned into a wasteland that resembles a lunar landscape. Abrupt 100-foot cliffs dot the countryside. Vast gray mounds of siltstone residue hover ominously over tin trailers and clapboard houses, inviting disaster with each heavy rain.

Even worse than the environmental havoc is the toll on human existence. Impoverished residents of Appalachia are literally being blasted out of their homes by strip miners.

Last September, we cited a study compiled by the Center for Science in the Public Interest which charged that strip mine blasting caused "over $200 million damage in 1975 to 10,000 private citizens." Over the past 10 years, the damage has exceeded $1.5 billion and has affected 75,000 people.

In some areas, wells have caved in and the water table is falling. Walls have been cracked and windows shattered. Children have been hit by flying rock. Some people have fled from their homes in fear of the erratic vibrations.

To get the story behind the statistics, we sent our roving reporter, Hal Bernton, into the coal counties of southwest Virginia, one of the most heavily strip-mined areas in the nation. He spoke with families who have been chased from their homes by strip mine operators and with others who have chosen to hang on.

In the small town of Norton, he found an elderly couple whose house backed up to a strip mine. Virginia law, incidentally, permits strip mining to within five feet of a dwelling.

"We value our house more than a million dollars, and now it's ruined," said the old people, pointing out wide cracks in their basement caused by the blasting. "In the summer," they said, "the dust from the strip mine settled in thick layers all over our bedspreads and dining room table. Outside, the air was so dirty you could barely make out the house from across the street."

A few blocks away, our reporter listened to the complaints of an angry group of people whose houses had been damaged by the blasting. "There's no warning," said one man. "You hear the blast and look out for rocks."

"One morning, the blasts nearly shook me out of bed," a woman exclaimed. Beside her as she spoke to Bernton was a framed picture whose glass had been cracked by the blasting.

Once, a group of homeowners protested the destruction of their homes to the strip mining owner. "Go ahead and sue me for damages," came the reply.

The owner, meanwhile, has moved out of town and now lives in a comfortable brick home adorned with oversized white pillars. A tennis court and swimming pool grace the grounds, and a helicopter whisks him back and forth from the coal fields each day.

In the same area, Bernton spoke with the wife of a retired military man. The couple was forced to move their three children out of their home when it became apparent they would soon be surrounded on three sides by strip mines.

The father and two teen-age sons contracted the lung disease pneumoconiosis from breathing the dust raised by the blasting. A three-year-old son began going into hysterics with each explosion. "He would be playing and they would set off a blast and it would scare him to death," said the mother.

Nor are these the only depredations the Carter administration must contend with in the mining country. Housing in the area is in critically short supply because the giant coal companies bought up the land years ago, when it could be had for as little as $5 an acre.

Many of the region's poorest people still depend on coal to heat their homes. Ironically, even though they live in the heart of coal country, they find it difficult to obtain enough of the fuel to get them through the winter.

This is because the coal companies prefer to produce a fine grained substance called steam coal, which is sold by the trainload to major power producers. Lump coal, the kind burned in home furnaces, is not produced in quantity because the low demand makes it unprofitable.

Many of the elderly who are living on fixed incomes cannot afford the exorbitant cost of lump coal. One federally-funded senior citizens organization has been trying to raise money to provide emergency free coal to those in greatest need. Some small strip mine owners have donated to the fund, but few if any large coal companies have kicked in any cash.

Our reporter visited an elderly widow who lived in a small house on top of a secluded ridge. She spoke of the problems of finding usable coal in this coal-rich area. In one corner of her living room, a pot-bellied stove wafted a blast of sulfur-scented heat into the air. She had moved her bed into the living room so that she could stay warm at night. Over the bed hung a cracked mirror and a picture of Jesus Christ.

The fading of Ted Kennedy

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Sen. Edward Kennedy has been reflecting recently that if he had succumbed to the suggestions to run for the presidency in 1968, and won, he would now be finishing up his White House service — at the unarguably ridiculous age of 44.

What he doesn't say, however, is that he has over the last eight years become something of a presidential has-been anyway. Once both the sentimental and practical hope of his party, a remarkably blessed man who could have had the nomination with but a nod of his head, Ted Kennedy's prospects have since come on hard political times.

The Democrats have won without him. The Kennedy spell has been broken by a lackluster but effective shaman from Georgia. It is safe to presume that if Jimmy Carter is not totally incompetent he will hold the chief executive's job for eight years, and it is possible his vice president may hold it for eight more. Ted Kennedy could still run in 1982, but would the family magic work for a member in his 60s?

And so the last of the Kennedys is being quickly relegated to something less than regal status. He has quite abruptly become a prince without a court, or even many courtiers. And what with moderate to liberal Democrats in power, he can no longer even claim, as he has throughout Republican rule, to head a government in exile.

What's more, there may be at least one other major embarrassment in store for the junior senator from Massachusetts. During the Carter term Kennedy will likely be outside the power structure looking in. The new executive is not fond of the senator, and in fact feels the Kennedy influence is excessive. Jimmy was quoted as saying of Teddy during the primaries: "I don't have to kiss his ass to be president."

Carter's sentiments are understandable. Kennedy gave him no encouragement in the early campaigning. And then when the Georgian began to move, Kennedy lent his support to an ill-fated "Stop Carter" effort. Finally, shortly before the nominating convention, the senator stooped to casually hinting that his personal resolve to not run had weakened, thus testing whether a draft was still a possibility.

Most certainly there are a good many people besides the president-elect who would be happy to see Ted Kennedy reduced to mortality. Numerous colleagues in the Senate, for example, Kennedy's strength there has largely been tied to his White House potential, other solons often deferring to him out of a kind of fear. That now seems less necessary, and thus more than a few members feel emancipated.

It is true that envy fires much of the resentment against the last Kennedy. But there is also the feeling that, given almost every opportunity in life, the senator has still mucked things up. Sentimentally elected as Senate whip in 1969, for instance, he performed so poorly, not to say irresponsibly, he had to be removed two years later.

The list of his faux pas is simply too long to easily forgive, even for unenthusiastic Kennedy critics, and at the very top is Chappaquiddick. Millions of Americans, including many in government, still are disturbed by the senator's actions on the night Mary Jo Kopechne died.

Hard sentiment lingers that Kennedy was guilty in that matter, if not of negligence regarding the girl, then at least of instigating a conspiracy to cover up the facts of the case. He misused his power. Possibly he obstructed justice. Certainly he stonewalled. R. Nixon was banished for such activity; Kennedy lost his driving privileges.

Hence the fading of Edward Kennedy's prestige, however dim it may go, will not be perceived unanimously as an American tragedy. Indeed his party should benefit from the demise of its absurd infatuation with a legacy that had about it a disquieting morbidity. And the nation? It clearly goes on, one less Kennedy notwithstanding.

Perhaps the senator too can profit from being politically leveled. Presumably he now has at least several years' freedom from the presidential question, i.e. from the wretched implications of absolute responsibility. If he is serious about government, about himself, that should be time enough to prove it with good work and sobriety.

Just in jest

In spite of all the talk about the good old days, let's be honest about it. Members of the NOW generation do enjoy certain advantages unknown to their grandparents. For one thing, at very small cost they can get beautifully designed eight and one half by eleven birth certificates for their pet dogs, cats or even cockatoos. —

And when it comes to involvement in community betterment, there are many ingenious ways never dreamed of by their grandparents in which today's young folks are going all out to display their patriotic zeal. Some of them are even installing bumper stickers on their cars reading: HONK IF YOU LOVE POMONA. — But with all of their advantages, today's young people are still finding it a bit of a problem to equal some of the accomplishments of their grandparents.

How difficult it would be, for instance, for a modern young miss to display that degree of maidenly modesty achieved by her grandmother who insisted on being vaccinated in a place that didn't show.

California in Congress

By EARL G. WATERS

Some interesting insight on California's status in national affairs is afforded by Congressman John E. Moss of Sacramento. About to start his 25th year in Washington, Moss is both dean of this state's 43 member delegation as well as its chairman. Even with a quarter century of service Moss is junior to more than 20 other Congressmen in a House where seniority is a dominant factor.

Because seniority weighs so heavily, California, although it is the nation's most populous state and is accorded seats in the House proportionate to its population, lacks the influence that would be expected of its strength.

"The problem is," said Moss, "that while we have one-tenth of the membership and the 29 Democrats in the delegation represent one-tenth of the majority party, we don't have a tenth of the membership on each committee. That is something I hope to remedy as the new Congress organizes."

Moss' position as a ranking member of the House and head of the largest state delegation will benefit that effort. And, if either John McFall of Manteca or Phillip Burton of San Francisco, both contending for House Majority Leader, win that post it will be helpful.

But even granting California its percentage share of committee memberships will not give the state the influence its population would indicate. For, under the Congressional system, committees are ranked according to length of service. They are even seated in committee on that basis with the most junior being the most distant from the chairman's ear. And committee chairmen are possessed with great authority.

It is this latter fact which damages California's voice in Congress more than anything else. Of the 20 major House committees only one Californian, Harold "Bizz" Johnson of Roseville, stands to become a chairman. He now ranks No. 1 on Interior and No. 2 on Public Works.

Moss said "While seniority is given great weight in selection of chairmen, the majority caucus has the final say. If the congressman ahead of him on Public Works should take another committee, Johnson probably could have his choice. Most likely he will take Interior."

Still, even though Johnson is the only Californian in line for a chairmanship things aren't altogether bleak for this state. With only four new congressmen in the delegation other members are moving far enough up in rank on committees to gain strong voices. Moss himself stands No. 2 on Interstate and Foreign Commerce and No. 3 on Governmental Operations.

Robert Leggett of Vallejo is No. 3 on Budget and No. 6 on Armed Services; Don Edwards of San Jose is No. 4 on both Judiciary and Veterans; Bernard Sisk of Fresno is No. 3 on Rules; James Corman of Van Nuys is No. 2 on Small Business; Gus Hawkins of Los Angeles is No. 4 on House Administration and No. 5 on Education and Labor; Charles Wilson of Hawthorne is No. 4 on Civil Service and No. 5 on Armed Services and George Brown of Colton is No. 6 on Agriculture.

The importance of rank on committees is not just that it makes it easier to converse with the chairman but that in most cases it entitles the member to chair an important subcommittee. The recommendations on matters assigned to them usually prevail on the full committee.

On the Senate side California, like all other states, has only two members representing only 1/50th strength. That is lessened somewhat by the fact one, S.I. Hayakawa, will be a freshman and a minority party member. However, Alan Cranston, only two years into his second term has moved high in power and is a contender for the No. 2 leadership post. And, as the state's senior Democratic Senator, he will have great influence at the White House, especially on patronage within the state.

Ann Landers

From a gal 'who waited'

Dear Ann Landers: You asked teenage girls to write and tell you the "lines" that were used on them by boys who were after sex. What a great idea!

I'm no teenager (I'm 22) but I thought you might be interested in the "lines" pitched at me over the past several years. Some of them were hilarious, others downright pathetic.

The adolescent, non-serious passes started in the seventh grade with games like Spin-the-bottle and Post Office. Then there were those unforgettable Scavenger Hunts — with kids pairing off and wandering around in search of pink toilet paper and vegetable sieves.

The serious, for-real lines started in the ninth grade. My favorite boyfriend was best pals with a guy who dated the most popular girl in school. He told me she "did it." That, of course, meant "it" was the thing to do. When he discovered that strategy didn't work, he promptly switched to, "If you loved me you'd prove it." I told him if he loved ME he wouldn't make such demands on me.

Finally he became adamant and said I HAD to give in because my stubbornness was lousing up his maturing process and giving him pimples. When I told him to buzz off he threatened to kill himself. The threat turned out to be as ridiculous as the rest of his garbage.

Then I started to date a fellow who was extremely considerate of my feelings but also very affectionate. When I made my position clear, he didn't pester me about sex. We necked a little, but he never tried to step beyond the boundaries I set up. After a few blissful months, Mr. Well-Behaved informed me I was going to have to share him with "Winnie" (a hot number) who wrote notes which made it plain she was ready, willing and able to "fulfill" him.

Off I went to college — still intact but getting curiously and curiously. The second day on campus I met Claude. He told me on our second date that dozens of girls had followed him from the swimming pool to his apartment, lusting after his body. Others were so aggressive (and hungry) they knocked on his door with bottles they couldn't open, dresses that needed to be zipped, furniture they couldn't move — anything to get past his front door and hopefully into his bed.

Then there was Horace, two years my junior, who wanted me to "teach him" . . . and Bernie, who was dying to know if a political science major had anything that worked besides her brain. And Orval, a religious nut who had been instructed by God to "show me the way."

Funny thing, nothing wore down my resistance. The lines just made me run in the other direction. No girl wants to feel used, fooled or easy.

When I finally said yes, it was because a sensitive and caring young man made me feel valuable as a human being. He applied no gimmicks, no hogwash, no sales talk. I made up my own mind. It was beautiful. I'm glad I waited. — Happy Past And Proud To Tell It

Dear Happy: I hope every young virgin out there who reads your letter will pay close attention. Ah! The more things change — the more they are the same!

Wife left him on the mantel

Don't know that the abnormal fear of heights is common among midgets, but the record shows one such man, who was only 28 inches tall, suffered greatly when raised to any altitude over his head. He married a woman of normal size. And the divorce paper he subsequently filed indicated she took advantage both of his littleness and his phobia. Whenever she wanted her way, he complained to the court, she picked him up and left him on the mantel until he gave in.

Start with the number 15,873. Multiply it by any single number. Multiply that answer by 7. Remarkable, what? All the numbers you get then are like the first number you multiplied with.

In England, please note, the light switch is off when flipped up and on when flipped down.

BAGELS

Q. "How do you cook a bagel, boil it or bake it?"
A. Both. Boil first, then bake.

Here's a note from a young fellow who says he could use a little advice because his girlfriend not only broke off their engagement, but thenceforward returned all his letters marked "fourth class male." Sorry, no adequate advice comes to mind. Just sympathy.

History's first snowshoes were said to be small pine trees tied to the feet of early American Indians . . . Russian is not the first but the second language of about half of the people in the Soviet Union . . . It's a scientific fact, too, that the water ski jumper lands with greater impact than does the snow ski jumper.

RED AND YELLOW

If a stranger shows up at a party wearing a red vest and yellow tie, the other men thereabouts may eye him with a certain suspicion, but the women in attendance tend to be attracted quite favorably by this colorful costume. Or so reports a color psychology expert. Our Love and War man says this is the sort of information that's most valuable to swinging bachelors skilled in self defense.

Around here, it's the mule that has a reputation for being stubborn. But in South America, the Llama is regarded as far more so. The Llama, it's said, is the original inventor of the sitdown strike. It may carry 100 pounds for 20 miles. But if it thinks its pack is just one pound too heavy, it will drop to the ground on the spot and won't get up again unless some of the weight is taken off.

The Indian word from which the penitentiary Sing Sing got its name originally meant "stony place."

Dogs subject to frostbite?

DEAR DR. MILLER: Is frostbite considered a hazard for dogs? — N.M.

DEAR N.M.: Only if it's quite cold outside . . . and even then only if the dog's out in it. Most dogs are not in danger of frostbite because if they are thin-skinned and light-coated their owners are unlikely to allow them out for any length of time. The more rugged dogs, particularly those who can grow a winter coat, are well enough protected that it would take exposure to an extreme combination of high wind and low temperature chill factors to affect them. Of all the canine candidates for frostbite, most susceptible perhaps would be the Basset Hound with his long, pendulous ear flaps, one of which might be exposed to inclement weather while the rest of him was snuggled up in a toasty doghouse.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Chloe was a just-born alley kitten, one I rescued and raised myself. Over the years, she proved to be a wonderful friend and devoted mother. We were both proud of her beautiful kittens. I lost track of how many. She had her last litter — one kitten — when she was 17. Looking back, I realize it was a mistake to let her have all those kittens. I realize it now. I still have two of her kittens, they're both neutered, and any other cats I have in the future will be, too. Why am I writing? I guess to apologize for dumping all those kittens on the world and to urge others not to make that same mistake, a tempting as it is. — N.C.

DEAR N.C.: Tempting to breed your cat because she's so special? Too tempting. Yet the only hope for ever controlling the terribly tragic surplus pet problem is to neuter your own and to support birth control efforts for the rest of the cat population.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My bird cage came equipped with a piece of furniture I don't care for. It's a genuine tree branch. Chirpy uses it some, but I don't like it because it's hard to clean. Should I keep it or throw it out? — F.J.

DEAR F.J.: Keep it — clean. It's preferable to a piece of doweling for a perch, since its changing diameter gives Chirpy's feet needed exercise and a change of pressure points.

For Tuesday, Dec. 7, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid picking at little faults within your own family today. Enjoy the good things in life you have.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful communicating today. You might write or say something that omits an important point. It could come back to haunt you moneywise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A sharp hustler could sell you the Brooklyn Bridge today. If you encounter a fast-pitch artist, head in the other direction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might come across a dominant personality who'll try to do your thinking for you today. Don't listen. Her answers won't benefit you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An inquisitive person will try to pry into your affairs today. Take care. You tend to talk too much.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You've had something on the back burner for some time. Don't talk too much. It may not turn out exactly as you think it will.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The big obstacles you can handle in stride today, but you tend to trip over the little things. Don't make mountains out of molehills.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're a fast study. Today, the light on your thinking cap is on dim. You'll trip on things that wouldn't ordinarily faze you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Being careless with your resources today could be traumatic. Only little things may be involved, but one could be valuable — like a diamond.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your thinking can be very mercurial today. Home-in on one beam and stick with it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone who has used you in the past again tries to take advantage of your good nature. Be on your guard.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Talkative people turn you off today. If you're at a social gathering, don't sit next to someone who you know is gabby.

Your Birthday, Dec. 7, 1976

Being penny-wise and pound-conscious is a practice you should follow this year. The small amounts you save daily could add up by year's end.

Making free with the freeways

As one who loves quiet streets and unpolluted air (are you old enough to remember?), I am delighted to see the Claremont City Council taking a firm stand against the extension of the Foothill Freeway through the northern environs of this placid academic community. How well I remember old King Canute and the tide.

Southern California is super confused about what to do with its automobiles, trucks, taxis and buses. A bunch of elementary school children in Safe-T-Walk primary This-Is-a-Traffic-Signal program could do better. When passenger cars cruising the late un-lamented Diamond Lane were usually carrying more people than the RTD buses in their special lanes, you had to think someone's head wasn't on straight.

All Claremonters want to get speedily to Los Angeles, but they don't want the unwashed millions of the great metropolis coming this way. None of this "Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free." After property taxes, Claremont has plenty of its own wretched refuse on its teeming shore. The obvious solution is a one-way freeway to Los Angeles from Claremont.

There is also concern that people riding the new freeway may actually TURN OFF into Claremont, thereby increasing traffic, noise, smog, litter and Jack-in-the-Boxes. (Jacks-in-the-Box?) The obvious answer to this threat is to have no off-ramps on the Foothill Freeway from San Bernardino to Los Angeles. One long chute from the National Orange Show to Olvera Street. Once you're on, you've had it. If you run out of gas, a special SQUAT car is sent out to summarily gun down the occupants of the vehicle. Teach them a lesson they won't soon forget.

What my fellow traffic experts in Sacramento have not yet realized is that one freeway does not a community make. A freeway is only valuable in conjunction with OTHER freeways, and places like Downey, Watts and Pico Rivera flourish only because they are in a grid of superhighways — Pomona Freeway, Long Beach Freeway, Harbor Freeway and God-Knows-What Freeway. They work because they support each other. Cars and trucks zooming into the area are promptly zoomed out again by interchanges and overpasses as complex as a bowl of spaghetti.

The answer to Claremont's rustic aspirations, then, is not FEWER freeways, but MORE. Put the

Diabetic has no symptoms

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 77 years of age and feel fine. The doctor claims I have diabetes on the basis of tests although I have none of the symptoms such as thirst, weight loss or frequent urination. He wants an expensive check every two months which I feel is excessive. I test my urine, which is sugar free.

Having spent over $1,300 with this doctor and not showing any symptoms, I would appreciate any advice you can offer.

DEAR READER — The symptoms of diabetes you mention occur after the disease had advanced to the point that one is losing a lot of sugar in the urine. Many diabetics are asymptomatic. It is an oversimplification, but the mildest diabetic has a normal fasting blood, and diabetes is found only with blood tests taken after drinking sugar water or after eating. The next most severe diabetic may have an abnormally high fasting blood glucose level. Finally, the more advanced diabetic will have symptoms. The early diabetic is often overweight until the weight-loss phase begins.

It would be difficult to know if your doctor's charges are excessive or not without knowing all of your problems and what you have had done. If you think you have been overcharged you should ask the doctor about it. If you are still not satisfied I would suggest that you take the matter up with the county medical society. The society will have a board to handle such complaints and will review your case for you.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention and Management. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long stamped self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Seven years ago I had a large plantar wart burned out of the ball of my foot. Scar tissue formed in the hole. As I walk a callous builds up, and I shift my weight to my other foot, so now my hip is bothering me. I trim this callous once a week.

Is there any possible way I could have this scar tissue completely removed from my foot? And what kind of doctor should I see about it?

You can feel the tug of God

I recall flying in an Army C-141 transport from Korea to Japan. Flying in that airplane is a real experience of trust. The peculiar thing about this plane is that it has no windows. You can feel the vibrations of the motors but you can't tell when the plane leaves the ground — or in which direction you are flying. You can't even tell if it's day or night.

You simply must trust the pilot.

Trust is also seen in the story of a little boy who was flying a kite one day. The kite was out of sight above the clouds. A man asked him what he was doing standing there holding a string. "I'm flying a kite," was the prompt reply. "How do you know?" asked the man. "You can't see it." "Yes," replied the lad, "but I can feel the tug!"

You cannot see God, but you can feel the pull on your life. Trust God! He has great plans for you. The prophet Jeremiah said, "For I know the plans I have for you, says the Lord, they are plans for good and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope." (Jeremiah 29:11).

Zydeco the new reggae? Creole music hits

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — After reggae, what? "Zydeco, that's what," declares Ida Guillory, a leading proponent of the Creole-Cajun music that had them dancing in the aisles of the Monterey Jazz Festival.

Mrs. Guillory, better known as the leader of the Queen Ida's Bon Ton Zydeco Band, is certain that zydeco's popularity is about to spread beyond the confines of its native Louisiana and the San Francisco Bay area, where her group has been preaching its musical virtues at everything from art festivals to nightclubs to occasional weddings.

"Zydeco is a slang expression for the French word 'haricot,' which means string bean," explains the Queen. "It's connected with the music because the music is a snappy, string-along kind of thing — very happy and danceable."

She sees similarities between zydeco (pronounced "ZYE-deh-koh") and reggae, the Jamaican street music that became one of the hottest recording commodities of the year. Like reggae, zydeco is a heavily syncopated ethnic music that shows promise of catching on with disco maniacs anxious for something new to dance to.

With Queen Ida leading the way on accordion, her five-piece Bon Ton Zydeco Band plays a musical gumbo of syncopated blues, rock 'n' roll with a backbeat reminiscent of Bo Diddley, and even an upbeat waltz.

Until the Queen, zydeco performers were heard pretty much in Louisiana and Texas only, a situation she hopes to correct. Her Bon Ton Band has one record out that is selling "fairly well" and is planning two tours this winter to further spread the word.

"We're reaching all ages already," said Queen Ida. "Our following is getting larger all the time, and even if they miss the words, it doesn't seem to matter. It's the rhythm that counts."

The rhythm of Queen Ida and her four male subjects was enough to energize the 7,000 customers at the 19th annual jazz festival held here this fall. "Ree-lease yourselves!" instructed guitarist Al Lewis, and the audience surprised festival organizers by pouring into the aisles to dance.

Queen Ida, whose adroit accordion playing has earned her the nickname Lady Fingers, is a native of Lake Charles, La. Her family moved to San Francisco in 1946, and, as a young woman, she played a hand-me-down squeezebox at Creole socials before putting it aside for marriage.

Then, with her three children in their teens, she followed her husband's advice and began practicing again. She and Lewis, her younger brother, formed the band, adding a bassist, drummer and Queen Ida's youngest son, Myrick Guillory, on washboard, tambourine and other miscellaneous percussion. "The music we play is basically the same as they play in Louisiana," the Queen explains. "But we've updated it some, adding blues licks to it, and some Latin rhythms. It's a multi-cultural music."
